Why You Need
Inventory Visibility

In the hypercompetitive world of omnichannel retail, every transaction counts. If an item appears unavailable online — when you actually do have it in stock in your fulfillment network — the result is a lost sale that should not have happened and a negative customer experience that can affect future interactions with your brand.

With inventory visibility, every unit of available stock — regardless of where it is ready in your network — is made visible online to assure your customers that the product can be shipped or ready to be picked up at a store.
